Dear Ivan:

This is a late note to say that Josh and I enjoyed our visit with you on December 10. The experiment in collaboration on the Humanities will be pursued enthusiastically, thanks largely to the high style and great energy of Jay Oliva and Leslie Tuttleton.

Possible inter-institutional collaborations in "Life Sciences and Public Policy" will probably emerge more slowly. But we hope that during 1980 our own efforts will mature to the point that we can be more specific about the kinds of projects in which you and your colleagues might participate.

Best personal regards.

Sincerely,

Rodney W. Nichols
Executive Vice President
